Subject: Business&Climate Summit 20/21 May Paris

Dear Dan,

I am just writing to see if you are able to make it for the BCS in May. It is turning out to be quite a business moment pre Paris, heavily backed by French business, and with a growing number of non French/European companies. Unfortunately not enough US companies, although we have few. (BoA, Skypower to name two).

I think Brice has been in touch with you, and we realise your heavy schedule this year.

I assume you have also heard of the French effort at a business-dialogue series moving towards Paris – with the inaugural event being also in Paris on the morning of the 20th. In addition there is a Finance/investment (How to move the trillions) event on the 22 May.

I attach our working document for your information – and if you can come then we could work out some useful opportunities/role.

As I am sure you know Tod Stern and even Kerry had been invited, but latest is that Andrew O'Brien (Global Partnerships) may be coming.

Hope all well with you – and you are not working too hard. PS Paris can be lovely in May!!

REVIEW AUTHORITY: David Van Valkenburg, Senior Reviewer

Todd – Bank of America has expressed interest (through various channels, including Stephanie Cutter) in playing an active role this year on climate and at COP21. They seem open to our direction as to what would be most useful for them to do. Stephanie Cutter and Jim Mahoney (BoFA) have asked for a meeting on Tues. 2/10: 10:00-11:00am or 3:30-5:30pm.

In an ideal world, we would sit down with you Mon/Tues to discuss/prep as a team, but schedule won't bear the traffic. If you want to do this meeting, I suggest we 1.) meet at the staff-level next week (with Trigg/Christo, L, Isabel and issue leads to discuss BoA and private sector interest in general) and put together a rec for you on how best we can engage them (and other private sector folks), and 2.) meet with you on 1/9 to discuss before the meeting on 1/10 (NB: most of our folks will be in Geneva then, which is why we need to meet with relevant team members next week). Thoughts?

Hi Clare,

Below is the availability for Stephanie and Jim Mahoney from BoFA.

Please let me know if one of the times could work on your end.

We are budgeting for an hour, but if you think the meeting should be longer please let me know.

Tues. 2/10: 10:00-11:00am, 3:30-5:30pm

Thanks!
Remi

All,

Attached is the work-in-progress doc where we are tracking possible COP21 related events. Very few, if any, of these are confirmed, but are what we know right now.

I checked in with Kirsten Schulz as well. The events that BoA has brought up with her so far are as follows:

- Possible partial sponsorship of a reception at the Ambassador's Residence mid COP21 to be shared with other Summit sponsors
- Possible sponsorship of a piece of the American Pavilion
- Small dinner with climate experts on the margins of COP21 – possible Ambassador inclusion at the event

I'm still working to get a hold of what's in front of L/Ethics right now.

Hope this helps.

Dear Todd,

To follow up on our meeting last month, I'm forwarding a proposal for how our office can support your team's work negotiating the 2015 UNFCCC agreement. If the broad outline of the proposed work looks like it answers your needs, we can proceed with translating it into a more detailed plan with specific deliverables.

We are happy to be able to contribute to advancing the administration's climate agenda, and now that we staffing up with expertise, we are eager to get the ball rolling on some specific work that will be relevant for you. Any or all of us are happy to discuss further with your team.

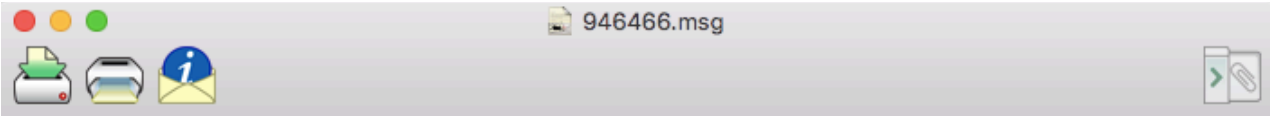

I'm looking forward to working together.

Best regards,

Rod

Highlighted below – lots of these are obvious.

The Fiji PM he's meeting with on Weds.

The Governors he'll see a ton of.

Helen Clarkson is head of Climate Group, which puts on Climate Week – should thank her and say opening ceremony is excellent.

Anne Finucane of BofA one of the most high-powered climate finance people – very well connected – worth saying hello.

Mehiels are the hosts. Lots of interesting articles about them...

I don't know whether the personal meeting with Steyer has landed.

Laurence Tubiana was key in Paris negotiations – ran things for the French President and Foreign Minister. Zany and confusing but good. Might chat with her about how the Climate Alliance can play a helpful role in maintaining Paris momentum, getting ready for 2019 summit.
